ARTIST'S STATEMENT

I love working with the unpredictable. Working with ink is a combination of manipulating the movement of water, which requires visual improvisation, as well as having patience with what can take a long time to dry. There is a wonderful chemical reaction between water and the different kinds of inks you use. Not all inks are compatible with each other and the outcome is unpredictable. I allow the process to develop naturally without any preconception of what I will create.

I am captivated by biomorphic shapes. My approach to form is done in a non-objective intuitive manner, often referred to as "organic abstraction." As in nature, my shapes take on a figurative style. The creative process is deeply personal. It is an expression of my life's journey, my beliefs and the depths of who I am.
